The Surreal Life and Work of Rene Magritte

Between the arches and the columns, Tonino exhibits works by contemporary masters like De Chirico, Paladino and Allen Jones. Lit: James Johnson Sweeney, Joan Miró, Museum of Modern Art, New York 1941, p.

Giorgio de Chirico Biography

Perhaps we can learn from Magritte himself. Salvador Dalí Figueras, 1904 - Figueras, 1989 Salvador Dalí, Lion, Cheval, Dormeuse invisibles, 1930 Oil on canvas 50.

'A Star Caresse the Breast of a Negress (Painting Poem)', Joan Miró, 1938

Just as the images in dreams condense multiple meanings, the elements of its composition lend weight to readings whose different layers are mutually enriching. Used to represent paths of contact between the self and the external world, the sexual organs and bodily orifices depicted in this painting can be seen as the physical equivalents of the yearning for contact with cosmological forces expressed in the image of the ladder.

Modern Art

After Oscar Dominguez, Max Ernst applied the principle of decalcomania to oil painting.

De Chirico, Giorgio 1888

Max Ernst Brühl, near Cologne, 1891 - Paris, 1976 Max Ernst, Ubu Imperator, 1923 Oil on canvas 81 x 65 cm Acquired by Paul Éluard together with two other large oil paintings on canvas, Ubu Imperator instantly marked Max Ernst's entry into the sphere of Surrealism. The Pompidou devotes a whole room to a dozen of his works and it is extraordinary just how effective they are.

De Chirico, Giorgio 1888

For example, when in 1938 his friend, the surrealist poet Paul Eluard, was short of money and needed to sell his collection of art, Penrose agreed to buy it.
