United Nations. Economic and Social Council

This is the first major work since Braudel's The Mediterranean to address the problems of studying the area as a whole and on a long time-scale. This book examines the roots of this instability using a theoretically original and empirically supported historical-sociological comparative analysis.

No one else can move among these Yemeni texts with such assurance, and classic works such as those of Kitāb al-Azhar, Sharh al-Azhar and Sayl al-Jarrar are read more closely than any Western academic has attempted previously. . This is against the widespread idea of considering the spread of the Salafī-Wahhābī doctrine as being the work of 'ulamā' from Najd Central Arabia only.

It is thus an invaluable resource, offering extensive comparative and systematic analyses of Islamic beliefs, institutions, movements, practices, and peoples on an international scale. They draw on an exceptionally wide range of evidence - literary works, documents, archaeology, scientific reports and social anthropology. We learn here that the diffusion of this doctrine after 1926 was much more the work of 'ulamā' from other parts of the Muslim World who had already acquired this doctrine and spread it in their countries by teaching and publishing books related to it.

United Nations. Economic and Social Council

Entries address political and social action as well as formal texts, and emphasis is placed on the practice and theory of Islam in Muslim societies around the globe.

Unlike more limited explorations of Islam, this work looks at Muslim societies in the Arab heartland as well as in South and South East Asia, and even in Europe and the Americas. Placing particular emphasis on the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, The Oxford Encyclopedia of the Modern Islamic World contains over 750 articles in four volumes. A formative and distinguished book.
