Health

A third discipline, arts in public health, has emerged as well in alignment with the national and global priority to enhance population health through wellness and prevention, and to address the social determinants of health, as well as the upstream drivers of health inequities. Connor A, Tomson C, Mortimer F. Questions about the collection of information can be directed to the , Government Digital Experience Division.

'It's time to recognise the contribution arts can make to health and wellbeing'

A review by the Care Quality Commission of the allocation of do not resuscitate orders to some care home residents without consultation, during the first wave of the pandemic, is expected shortly. The reports establish priorities among effective clinical prevention services in British Columbia by examining clinical effectiveness, impact on population health and cost effectiveness.
