However, the Seminole Tribe ultimately decided to design the entire structure in a guitar shape. He imagined that all this showed his indefatigable industry; in reality, it was a great waste of time, and his Ministers turned it to good account for their own purposes, as soon as they had learnt the art of managing him; they kept his attention engaged with a mass of details, while they contrived to get their own way in more important matters.

The Cram Sourcebook: Volume One

He was conscious that the substantial favours he had to bestow were not nearly sufficient to produce a continual effect; he had therefore to invent imaginary ones, and no one was so clever in devising petty distinctions and preferences which aroused jealousy and emulation. He took to himself the credit of their successes with admirable complacency, and honestly believed that he was all his flatterers told him.
