Curiosity and Exploration

As always, keep a close eye on little ones while playing with babies and toddlers with any activity. Since they are more mobile, they can self-select toys that were once outside their reach. Show the photos to your little one and name each person.

Functional/Manipulative Play

Watch this space for more baby developmental play and information. Further, enough time every day needs to be provided for all kinds of play, and constructive play should be encouraged inside, in transition areas i.

[PDF] The communicative context of object manipulation in ape and human adult

It has been suggested that curiosity is not a unitary construct.

Manipulation

When children begin using their hands, all fingers move together at the same time. Children will naturally be drawn to explore a space that is inviting.

Gross Motor Skills and the Development of Play in Children

For example, these children may infer what functions may operate beneath the surface of an object. As a result, the infants may not have performed as well as they could have in the test phase.
