We thought about and discussed good and bad experiences of customer services. This is an aspect of selection by the researcher in following closely most recent publications in the same scientific domain to avoid multiple discoveries.

Creating a customer focused environment in the academic sector

From this vantage point, all distributive issues are to be resolved by making the pie bigger. This tetrahedron will thus collapse to the representation presented in Figure 5.

Creating the Customer Driven Library: Building on the Bookstore Model

Years have passed, and here I am, defending the existence of what should be the core of academic institutions: the academic library. According to his study in physics and biology, over 60 per cent of his respondents were faced at least once with the fact that somebody else published a solution for a research problem they were working on.
