Instead, they should simply define a first set of steps. In addition, they give the visitor an opportunity to see how a mother interacts with her child, or how well a senior or person with a disability can get around his house and take care of himself. Sensitivity to the political economy of donor systems is also required.

Chapter 24. Improving Services

But they are fundamentally different questions from how to get such a reform agenda enacted into policy in the first place in a political world, and how to measure the success of that effort.
