The Man Who Saw Tomorrow

Nostradamus was a guest of Lord Florinville at the castle of Faim, where he was attending professionally on Lord Florinville's mother. The Church administered the hospitals, and appears to have done so in a skilled and highly responsible way.

Nostradamus, the Man Who Saw Through Time: Part Two: Chapter Three: In the Twentieth Century

Artificial Intelligence — The Robots will rule the world From 2021, artificial intelligence will be equal or will even surpass human intelligence, which could lead to an apocalyptic scenario like those we see in movies. Only after prolonged study did Nostradamus begin to try out some remedial ideas. The picture of him, which history presents, calling those who stood in the midst of the whirlwind of death to go into the dew-laden dawn and gather the red roses of summer for healing, is in itself symbolic of the way in which the skill and spirit of this great man touched the lives of those who turned to him for help.

Nostradamus

His beliefs about infection control, however, were contrary to the practices of his time. The battle will approach the great new city Geneva. IV-30 More than eleven times the populace has refused the monarchy, All influences have been alternately augmented and lowered, And so low will they sink that little gold can be sewed up for keeping, Later there will be famine, corruption and exposés of hidden matters.
