But by 1894 the superintendent was complaining that the added regions were too remote, too large, too rugged, and too frequented by hunting parties to be effectively policed with his limited manpower. Second, it established purposes for the reserves, and gave the Interior Department authority to regulate their use, in a law now often known as the Forest Management Act or Organic Act of 1897. Looks at the history of the creation of the eastern national forests, and their importance to the nation.

Accessed May 22, 2017 at. The Northern Pacific Railroad had just completed its tracks across southern Montana, and railroad officials intended to market Yellowstone as a tourist pleasure resort. Upset by what they saw, concerned citizens established regionally-focused organizations like the Appalachian National Park Association founded 1899 in North Carolina and the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests founded 1901.

Yellowstone Park, Arnold Hague and the Birth of National Forests

Graves looks at what has been accomplished under the Weeks Law during the first four years of its existence.

Centennial (U.S. National Park Service)

Historian, Eldorado National Forest, USDA Forest Service. The NPS Centennial also kicked off a second century of stewardship of America's national parks and engaging communities through recreation, conservation, and historic preservation programs. President Benjamin Harrison signed the bill on March 3, 1891.

USDA Forest Service

The trip is best made in dry weather with a four-wheel-drive vehicle. Unlike the National Park Service who is dedicated to preservation, the Forest Service strives to balance between timber harvest, grazing, water protection and recreation, just to name a few. Longleaf pine sandhills are woodlands dominated by longleaf pine.
