This program also coordinates with state and local agencies. Currently, all Oregonians live in areas that meet federal air quality standards.

Report an environmental issue

Ground-level ozone is the pollutant of concern in the San Antonio area that poses the greatest threat to human health. The first is a line chart depicting the overall decline in national air quality concentrations for criteria air pollutants from 1990 to 2019. This annual report, titled Our Nation's Air, summarizes the nation's air quality status and trends through 2019.
