The recommendations cluster into six areas: 1 promoting equality and amplifying voices and representation to make our political institutions and practices more inclusive and accessible; 2 empowering voters and encouraging them to take responsibility for the common good by actively engaging in the process of governance; 3 ensuring the responsiveness of our political institutions to convince people that our elected officials are directly accountable to them; 4 invigorating and expanding civil society to ensure that everyone has an opportunity to engage, that people understand that political participation is not limited to just voting, and that all of us, especially young people and immigrants, know that we have a role to play by volunteering and engaging to bridge differences; 5 reinvigorating our civic infrastructure to support a common purpose so that the experience of being an American is not narrowly defined by race, ethnicity, gender, age, or class, but rather a universally shared ideal that must be reaffirmed in order to hold us together as a nation; and 6 creating a culture of commitment to living in a democratic society.
