Lemhi Shoshone Relationship with US

As time passed and this parent tribe grew and spread over more territory, it gradually split off six bands gentes, each with a Prince of Sub-Chief, a distinguishing name and a council with its own sacred fire. An increased emphasis on science in the last decades of the 20th century brought an increased awareness of how biological developments affected the outcomes of encounters between Indians and Europeans. In the Illinois country and in Louisiana the issue of intermarriage was further complicated by the presence of Africans, most of whom were enslaved.
