Responding to Civil Disputes

Arbitration can be binding or non-binding. The negotiation process provides the parties or disputants and opportunity to exchange ideas, identify the irritant points of differences, find a solution, and get commitment from each other to reach an agreement.

Evolution of the process of ADR in Bangladesh

Then, it was expanded in different cities and districts. Such legislative steps were urgent in the face of increasing foreign investment in Bangladesh in various sectors, especially in natural gas and power, and the ever-growing export trade with the rest of the world.

Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR): Efficient Mechanism in resolving Disputes

The disputing parties structure the process and determine the outcomes. In T, permission was given to remedy inadequate pleadings. However, scholarly mediation literature existed as early as 1680, when Johann Wolfgang Text or described essential international mediation standards.
