Way We Were: From one train wreck to another

The Way We Were is a 1973 American romantic drama film starring Barbra Streisand and Robert Redford and directed by Sydney Pollack. I know what to expect when I pick up one of these books, and I'm always happy to pore over the pages and see what guests are staying at the inn, what is happening in the village of Acorn Hill, and what values of faith, forgiveness or grace I can glean from the pages.

Way We Were

What was intended to be the final draft of the screenplay was written by Laurents and Pollack at Stark's condominium in Sun Valley, Idaho. Suspecting Serbian backing for the assassination, Austria-Hungary was determined to use the royal murder to crush the Serbian threat once and for all. It spent a total of 17 weeks charting before decreasing weekly until meeting its final position at number 57 for the week ending August 16, 1975.

The news in January 1904 talked of a Union Pacific train pulling a load of empty cars overturning near where Home Depot is today. The fiery campus radical organized rallies and a peace strike, and the memory of her fervor remained with Laurents long after the two lost touch. Everyone's life is like that — ups and downs.

The Number Ones: Barbra Streisand's "The Way We Were"

Three sisters whose father was a minister have turned the family home into a bed and breakfast. Two prominent themes ar The Grace Chapel Inn series is written by various authors but Judy Baer is one of my favorites. According to Park City historians Steve Leatham and David Nicholas, railroading can be a rather dangerous business.
