Art of Warfare in the Age of Marlborough, The

The Austrians and Saxons lost almost 9,000 killed and wounded, about 5,000 prisoners, including four generals, and 66 guns. It stresses the importance of the huge logistic trains needed to keep the armies in the field and the consequent tendency for campaigns to mostly culminate in a single battle. Book is in Used-Good condition.

The Land of Counterpane: The Art of Warfare in the Age of Marlborough

It gives a great sense of context and allows the reader to compare and contrast Napoleonic warfare with that of Frederick the Great and other commanders of the Age of Enlightenment. Therefore, most every importance is put in the weapons, strategy, tactics, battles, etc.

Battle of Hohenfriedberg

Most items will be dispatched the same or the next working day. Pages and cover are clean and intact.

The Art of Warfare in the Age of Marlborough by David G. Chandler

Having read the section on artillery I'm firmly of the view that the guys in this action from a League of Augsburg game in Edinburgh should be running flat out to get away from those burning ammunition wagons! A classic of its kind--- a clear, well-crafted discussion of the art of war in the age of Marlborough and Louis XIV. As a young man he served briefly in the army, reaching the rank of captain, and in later life he taught at the Royal Military Academy, Sandhurst.

The Land of Counterpane: The Art of Warfare in the Age of Marlborough

As another contribution to 'synthetic' history, it is a very successful exercise. I feel this read is going to interest those who want to know the military aspects and impacts of the Napoleonic era.

I particularly enjoyed the first chapter which summarized the style of warfare in the 18th century.
