Icebreakers for Online Classes

That is a recipe for disaster.

Five Skills Online Teachers Need for Classroom Instruction

I have also wondered what advice I would give to someone about to teach an online course for the first time. Instructions should be easy to find, explicit, and multimodal. Nor should it be a warren of nested and subnested folders.

Culturally Responsive Teaching: 5 Strategies for Educators

Experiment with the poll feature in your software or try web alternatives like.

But it can be done.

Teaching Styles: Different Teaching Methods & Strategies

We need to know how are students are doing, how we are doing and also our peers before we can effectively teach student how what and where we want them to go with respect to their creativity and knowledge. New methods for identifying learning difficulties and other factors that affect academic performance are necessary in a digital education environment.

Teaching Strategies for the Remote Classroom

A very useful post to learn the basics of teaching learning activities. I walked away with immediate tips to use. Humans are more likely to want to be in a space if it is pleasant to look at.

Teaching Guide: Respecting Others

Additional Resources The Chronicle of Higher Education's article by George Williams on is a quick read to help you get started. Since my class was a graduate class with most of the students being part of a cohort program, most of these came naturally for them.

Icebreakers for Online Classes

I enjoyed reading about the TQE by Thompson. Scenario 1: An educational institution decides to put a course on Educational Management online.
