He was wearing a tall, pointed hat and performing magic tricks with scarves and coins.

Life Lessons from Goethe

In fact, the kind of thinking described here is very ancient; by no means did it begin with Goethe or Steiner — the blurring of distinctions between knowledge, wishes, faith, and morality have been with mankind from the beginning and it may, in fact, be among the things we need to work past.

Goethe, Faust 1, and Science

Everything that meets us in the first part, especially in the beginning, is full of deep truths regarding nature, but much in it resembles a kind of theory of art — as if someone spoke of things that his soul had not yet fully experienced. Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von 1995. His non-fiction writings, most of which are philosophic and in nature, spurred the development of many thinkers, including , , , , and.
