Lets face it, if Malcolm were honestly concerned about corruption, then why resist the numerous calls to have a federal ICAC instigated in the face of the NSW illegal donations discoveries? Like Stretton, Troy belongs to a century-long tradition of advocates for the suburb. But too much of the text is polysyllabic generalisation and abstraction, which when translated into plain English expresses truisms or the obvious.

The paper provides a detailed long run account of land use and land value based on rate records, census data, and planning schemes; and documents continuity and change in urban characteristics over a 100 year period. This paper presents the conceptual and theoretical framing of this programme of research, along with findings from the second phase of our empirical work conducted in the suburb of Carlton, Melbourne.
