Moreover, referenda based on the agreement were passed overwhelmingly on both sides of the Irish border, with about 95 percent of Irish voters and 70 percent of Northern Irish voters the agreement. This chronology has been compiled from a number of sources. See also the list of source material that will be used in the main web pages on the deployment of British troops.

'The Armalite and the ballot box': Sinn Fein's electoral strategy in Northern Ireland

For the new edition, this should have been judiciously pruned. In Dublin over 90 per cent of workers stopped work in respect of those who had died, and approximately 30,000 - 100,000 people turned out to march to the British Embassy. However a section of the crowd continued along William Street to the British Army barricade.

The Capacity of Political Leadership

None of the eyewitness accounts of those shot saw any gun or bomb being used.

Ulster Army Council

The answers to many of the questions posed by its recent political history depends on the future political management of Northern Ireland.

Northern Ireland, a political directory, 1968

In: Political Leadership and the Northern Ireland Peace Process. Yukl, Richard Lepsinger, and Antoinette D. The adoption of a parallel electoral strategy in the 1980s and 1990s represents a fundamental change of tactics.
