À propos d'un crâne gravé de Bornéo au Musée des Confluences de Lyon

Proto-Malayic: A reconstruction of its phonology and part of its morphology and lexicon. He has been Principal of the Asia SIL school when it was located in Singapore.

B

Rejang country is surrounded on three sides by various Malay dialects, and its western edge meets the Indonesian Indian Ocean. Dyen and Tsuchida 1991 conclude that Formosan and Philippine languages do form a single primary branch on account of the large amount of vocabulary that these languages share. It appears, then, that various members of the East Formosan branch provide evidence for a closer link with Malayo-Polynesian.

Translation of Bidayuh in English

This is a reconstruction of PMP phonology following the comparative method. The use of the same metaphors here indicates that, even if the Malagasy did not have a Pallava-derived script, they seem to be an exponent of the writing traditions of the Malays and other Austronesian peoples who throughout the centuries have adapted Pallava-, Arabic and European writing systems in a continuous tradition of literacy, sometimes carrying over writing conventions from one system into the next.

The second sentence is a negation; it has the negator as its head, which has the Actor pronoun cliticized to it.

Obstruent epenthesis and the unity of phonological features

Chamorro and Palauan Belau are spoken in Micronesia in the Western Pacific area and fall geographically outside the scope of this volume.
