CHAPTER III

You said you would dash my brains out: come, do it quickly.

The Project Gutenberg eBook of The Journal of Negro History, Volume IV, 1919.

Plad there been a strong central government at this time, the treaties in question would undoubtedly have been abrogated and the Oconee war, with its train of horrors, would have been happily averted. Nor was Georgia prepared quietly to acquiesce in any such perpetual guarantee of titles to savage tribes upon her soil. WE have not yet surveyed the full and perfect equipment of those troops whichLoyola sent forth to prosecute the war against Protestantism.
