But we do not imagine that we yet have it all, by any means. At the International Congress in England, Miss Carty read a letter which she had received from Miss Carlyle, the Inspector, and the Duke of West- minster, who contemplated introducing a Bill before the House of Lords with the same objects in view as those referred to, was so interested in reading the copy of this letter in the public press, that he expressed to Lady Aberdeen, a desire to meet Miss Carty.
