13. INSTYTUT ISTORII AN URSS
INSTITUT ISTORIEI AN USSR
Institute of History of the Academy of Sciences of the Ukrainian SSR
Address: 225601 Kiev-1, vul. Kirova, 4

HOLDINGS
A separate Institute of History of Ukraine was established in Kiev in 1936, on the basis of earlier historical collections and research departments of the Academy of Sciences and the Institute of the History of the Ukrainian SSR. The All-Ukrainian Association of Marxist-Leninist Scientific Research Institutes joined the Institute of Archeology. In 1944, the Institute of History of Ukraine returned to Kiev as a separate institute. Since 1953 it has been called simply the Institute of History of Ukraine.

In the course of its activities, it developed a considerable collection of manuscripts and historical documents, although subsequently most of these were transferred to the Institute of Archeology (TDAKA), or to the main library of TANB. There are a few manuscript materials retained by the institute library, including some original documents or parts of publications, or parts of manuscripts of historical writings by important Ukrainian historians. Of special interest, in this connection, the institute reportedly has some still unpublished portions of the Historical Manuscripts of Ukraine, 16th-19th centuries (10 vols.; 1896-1937), by Mykhailo Semenov Hrushevsky (1866-1939). A ninth volume was published posthumously in 1937, edited by Hrushevsky's daughter, apparently, additional materials gathered by Hrushevsky for the projected final two volumes remain in the institute.

PUBLISHED DESCRIPTIONS
There are no published descriptions of the archival and manuscript holdings of the institute. The library of the institute is described in the directory of libraries of the All-Ukrainian Association of Marxist-Leninist Scientific Research Institutes (1979), pp. 134-36.

This can be attributed to differences in brightness and texture between bare soil and vegetated land. The Skoptsy, for their part, had no trouble accepting the published texts as authentic.
