Dissertation

Another thing I found particularly interesting in the editor's comments are extensive passages from Wilde's letters to Mary Anderson, in which he explains his intentions behind this or that passage in the play, or why he wanted the scenery done in a particular way, and so on. Allen's Copy of the Last Letter Dr.

Safford NY and London, 1886. Let it be remembered, however, that he was of a gen- erous, open-hearted, and loving disposition. Lamb is in his lodgings in Great Russell Street, Covent Garden, the individual spot he likes best in all London.

That unhappy old dyspeptic unable to enjoy a good dinner himself, could not for» give Boswell his gusto for the good things of life.

Book

Montgomery Hyde: Lord Alfred Douglas: A Biography London, 1984. The catalogues say there are very few perfect copies in existence, in which case I should like to content myself with Browning's im- perfect copy.
