T. Thornton - How to Provide Effective Feedback to Project Team Members

My Project

Flexible seating is an important addition to any modern classroom, and mine is lacking in options for my students. I want to provide a variety of materials that will allow for several alternative seating options. A recent academic paper states that: "Studies suggest that children who participate in short bouts of physical activity within the classroom have more on-task behavior." We're looking for crazy flexible seating options, stuff that will really let us wobble while we work!

Additionally, my students lack access to technology, which is important nowadays.

We're living in the 21st century, where you've gotta be tech savvy by the time you're five or you're basically branded a cavewoman and shunned. Studies have shown that having access to technology increases chances of future success by a factor of three. Technology can't get here fast enough.
