Others suggested ways students could benefit through exposure to the arts.

Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction

We will describe an expanded attendance data framework to identify which students are likely to begin the new school year significantly behind in their academic learning.

Variations in the resource base upon which Chapter 1 builds are driven primarily by differences in district revenue, suggesting the increased targeting of Chapter 1 funds solely on poverty criteria may still deny truly supplemental services to students from high poverty schools in low revenue districts.

Teacher Preparation and Performance

The educational reform movement has ushered in a new era of accountability for student outcomes by all educators, thereby requiring a significant focus on data collection and analysis and compliance for the SLP.
