John Calvin

And so we chant on every Sunday of Orthodoxy a refrain that has deep meaning and significance for every Orthodox Christian—a staunch reminder that the veneration of icons is no mere secondary concern or the imaginations of human presumption: This is the Faith of the Apostles, this is the Faith of the Fathers, this is the Faith of the Orthodox, this is the Faith that has established the Universe.

BORROMEO 1578 — Carlo Borromeo, Libretto dei ricordi al popolo della citta e diocese di Milano, Milano 1578. This corruption did not, like other heresies, develop itself at once, for in that case it would have met with decided censure and rebuke: but, making its commencement under a fair disguise, so gradually was one practice after another introduced in connection with it, that the church had become deeply steeped in practical idolatry, not only without any efficient opposition, but almost without any decided remonstrance; and when at length an endeavor was made to root it out, the evil was found too deeply fixed to admit of removal.

The Controversy on Images from Calvin to Baronius

Calvin rejected the images of and the crucifix that is, the image of the body of Christ upon the but allowed a plain cross. Calvin agreed with on by and the sole authority of Scripture. The most heated disputes on the issues of the symbolism and the shape of altars were held in the Church of England Anglicanism
