Wat Phra That Chae Haeng (Phu Phiang)

Traditional Thai massage is available and bookable from the reception. Apart from the incorporation of Islam into their cultural and religious practice, another point of cultural difference is that their heredity line is maternal. Many Khmer shrines and artefacts stand proof to the claim and constitute major attractions of the province.

Thai Amulets

The temple has an entrance fee of 30 Baht for foreigners and make sure to cover your shoulders and knees otherwise you will be asked to rent a scarf to cover up in respect of the temple and monks. Everything was designed with mixed Chinese and Thai mythology influences, largely influenced by the mood of the day. Phranang Place does have its own internet cafe with several terminals to surf the internet and stay in touch with your friends at home.

Wat Phra That Doi Kham (Golden Temple)

Hotel is convenient and worthy a visit. Most interesting part was the colonnade of small figures on the approach, not something you would want to walk down in the dark! Local buses go west 7 km ride to Phan Rang bus terminal, near the Phan Rang market. Cheap cost of living city and value for money.

Wat Phanan Choeng

It is +- 750m far from Nan River and the main bridge that will take you to the city. The name Phan Rang' is the Vietnamese pronunciation of Panduranga a word of origin or Parang. Suitable for experienced motorcyclists, the 'Sukhothai Loop' follows the famous No 1148 road through the mountains to Phayao and Nan, the UNESCO World Heritage-listed Sukhothai temples, Sirikit dam, and the elephant conservation center in Lampang.

Wat Phra That Chae Haeng (Phu Phiang)

I create this blog solely for the mission to promote Buddhist values for the benefit of others. Cold and Hot Drinks or other refreshments are available. While staying with us we provide buffet breakfast.
