Easier said than done, though, and it required significantly more defensive preparations than the British had constructed before the offensive started.

The Forgotten Flyers

To carry the advance beyond the Jambu Bum, Colonel Cannon suggested using Chinese airborne troops against either Myitkyina or Kamaing and urged that all supply be by air. The move was completed in only eleven days.

Slim, William Joseph 1st Viscount Slim.

With the creation of in late 1943, the Eastern Army which formerly controlled operations against the in Burma and also had large rear-area responsibilities, was split into two.

Documents

The records available reveal no protest from Chennault or attempt to have Stratemeyer overruled by higher authority. Six further Canadians were killed with other units flying the same type. Though no worse than what other Americans faced in the Southwest Pacific and a little better than what the Chinese bore with cheerful fortitude, conditions in the field for the liaison personnel were still hard and were a strain on those Americans who bore them.
