Picasso Estate Collection Biography :: PicassoMio

During the summer of 1907, Picasso brought his groundbreaking, proto-cubist manifesto, Les Demoiselles d'Avignon, to its final state after months of working and re-working the composition Zervos, vol. This theme, the male character with mustache, appears in Picasso's work in the summer of 1914 during his stay in Avignon, notably in a painting that remained unfinished, The Painter and his Model, kept by the artist all his life and now at the Picasso Museum. Les enfants du bout du monde.

Our varied selection of works on paper and ceramics featuring this favoured motif is led by the exquisite 1907 woodcut Le Poussin, once in the collection of Gertrude Stein. Perhaps his most famous painting is Guernica which shows the horrors of war after the bombing of the town of Guernica. Spanning the entirety of his career and bridging both his painterly and sculptural mastery of the ceramic medium as well as his celebrated and spontaneous draughtsmanship on paper, the present grouping focuses particularly on the motifs of the portrait, head, face and personality, subjects for which the artist was most greatly admired.
