This north façade was intended as the main entrance to the museum, with its bronze doors, designed by James Gamble and Reuben Townroe, having six panels, depicting Humphry Davy chemistry ; Isaac Newton astronomy ; James Watt mechanics ; Bramante architecture ; Michelangelo sculpture ; and Titian painting ; The panels thus represent the range of the museum's collections. The main impetus behind the large-scale digitisation project called the Factory Project was to list more items in the collections in those computer databases. This is to ensure that the exhibits are better displayed, more information is available and the museum meets modern expectations for museum facilities; it should take about ten years to complete the work.
