Glamorgan Bird Club

Although collation of records by the RBBP is useful for the design of future surveys, it is currently insufficient to enable robust population estimates, measures of change or maps of current distribution to be produced: thus a national survey is needed if our conservation work is going to be properly underpinned by evidence. At this stage, has been in touch with the national survey organiser Simon Wotton , with a view to collaborating and sharing data we have already collected about our local population.
