The Common Fisheries Policy: origins and development

This paper focuses on the gender dimensions of wellbeing in fishing households in Northern Ireland. Both dialogues were formalized in 2017, under the Canada-EU Strategic Partnership Agreement.

The Common Fisheries Policy of the European Union and fisheries economics

The current Community rules are to be re-examined as part of the planned review of the cod recovery plan. The Commission has put forward its for the new Multiannual Financial Framework of the European Union for the period 2014-2020. The original six Common Market members realised that four countries applying to join the Common Market at that time Britain, Ireland, Denmark including Greenland, and Norway would control the richest fishing grounds in the world.

Through information exchange and a dedicated support unit, this network aims to assist the different stakeholders involved in the sustainable development of fisheries areas at local, regional, national and European level. The CBSA recognizes that threats and opportunities arising from international trade growth and global migration — from drug and human trafficking to organised crime, migration crime, smuggling, terrorism and fraud — can be dealt with most effectively by working with our domestic and international partners.
