Gaius Valerius Catullus

The trio of English Romantic poets, Byron, Shelley and Keats, is famous in this respect; Keats not least, since he died at just 23. Not only did he lack control of his late wife, but he lacks control of his own mind and ego.

Love's contradictions: Catullus on the agony of infatuation

Ten years older than Catullus, Clodia dazzled him, became his muse, but infuriated him with her relentless promiscuity, occasioning first his most intimate and then some of his most vitriolic verse: Passer, deliciae meae puellae Quicum ludere, quem in sinu tenere, Cui primum digitum dare appetenti Et acris solit incitare morsus, Cum desiderio meo nitenti Carum nescio quid lubet iocari, Et Hesperus, who shines with happier fire in the sky? So either kill the cruel plague to their noses, or cease to wonder why they run away.

Catullus (c.84 BC

But meanwhile, you, enter the fire, you, full of boorishness and crudities, Volusian annals, papyrus droppings. A decade later, Augustus himself erected the Library of the Temple of Apollo, on the Palatine Hill, some fragmentary ruins of which still remain.
