Begin the music, and the worries Almost vanish which would have affected our joy. The theory of agrarianism is that the culture of the soil is the best and most sensitive of vocations, and that therefore it should have the economic preference and enlist the maximum number of workers. Larkin's public persona was that of the no-nonsense, solitary Englishman who disliked fame and had no patience for the trappings of the public literary life.

Friedrich Holderlin

The world, as a result, is seen as having both positive aspects it is a rosegarden, and thus analogous to the garden of Paradise and negative aspects it is a rosegarden full of thorns, and thus different from the garden of Paradise.
