Credo: A Presentation of the Chief Problems of Dogmatics with Reference to the ApostlesÕ Creed by BARTH, Karl / Strathearn McNabb (transl) and Robert McAfee Brown (foreword): Near Fine Soft cover (1964)

Barth believed that liberal theology had accommodated Christianity to modern culture, and it had to be changed. Motion for a new trial.

Introduction

In a sermon early on, he reflected on the soteriological claims of Christian faith: Christian faith says that the root of the problem lies within our hearts. His ecumenical passion reached beyond Christian solidarity to engage with Judaism. His major contribution was a radical change in the direction of theology from a 19 th-century orientation toward progress to an orthodoxy that had to cope with the grim realities of the 20 th century.

Robert McAfee Brown

He wanted to lead theology away from the influence of modern religious philosophy, with its emphasis on feeling and humanism, and back to the principles of the Reformation and the teachings of the Bible.
